

- ☛ EXERCISE 4. In the following dialogs and passages,
- a. Underline the new information.
 - b. Put parentheses around (old information).
 - c. Mark the primary stress on the new information.
 - d. Read each passage aloud.

Situation 5. In a bookstore.

- A: I'm looking for a textbook on physiology. I found some new textbooks, | but do you have any used ones?
- B: I don't think so. We've already sold the used ones.

Situation 6. Two friends talking about work.

- A: My company is sending me to Albania to do some research.
- B: That sounds fascinating. What part of Albania?
- A: Tirana. It's the capital. But if I had a map, | I'm not even sure I could find Albania.
- B: It's on the Adriatic, | kind of between Yugoslavia and Greece.
- A: Isn't it Communist?
- B: It used to be Communist. Now it's a democracy | -- or at least trying to become a democracy.

Situation 7. Two colleagues talking.

- A: I'm looking for a speaker for our next seminar. Do you have any ideas?
- B: What kind of speaker?
- A: I'd like to find someone to talk about computer ethics.
- B: What aspect of computer ethics?
- A: Privacy on the internet.
- B: How about Jane Foster?
- A: She might be OK, | but I really want someone dynamic.
- B: Nancy Park's dynamic. But I wonder if she's available.
- A: She's never available. Her schedule's always too full.